Environmental Management

Glendell Open Cut mine has a comprehensive Environmental Management System (EMS) in place. The EMS provides a framework for dealing with environmental management issues at the mine, in a systematic way. It brings together all aspects of environmental management on the mine site.

The EMS covers the design, development, production, maintenance and rehabilitation of the operation and its infrastructure. The principal objectives of the EMS are to ensure that the company adopts a continuous improvement approach to environmental management issues at the site and wherever practical and economic, implement best practice environmental management. The EMS also serves to ensure that site activities are controlled, such that the company either prevents or minimises any environmental impacts associated with the operation.

Continuous monitoring of meteorological conditions, air quality, water quality, noise levels and blasting operations is undertaken. Ongoing monitoring of flora and fauna and rehabilitation areas is also completed. This provides the mine with the information required to minimise environmental impacts, and evaluate the effectiveness of the environmental management process and rehabilitation efforts.

Glendell Community

Glendell Open Cut is committed to ongoing open and honest communication with the local community and other stakeholders. We actively seek to engage and consult the community to provide information relating to the environmental, social and operational performance of the mine and enable the community to provide feedback. Members of the local community are encouraged to contact us to raise any concerns they may have.

Our broad community program, which includes donations, sponsorship and in-kind assistance for a range of environmental, community and educational initiatives demonstrates our on-going support for the local community. Among the groups and events supported are the Mt Pleasant Sports Day, Hebden Community Hall Trust, and a number of other local initiatives.
